

'TEMPTRESS' LEXA STAHL MAKES SUCCESSFUL LFC DEBUT

Professional bodybuilder Lexa Stahl made her LFC debut on Valentine's Day at LFC46: Tunnel of Love. Taking on veteran Tomiko 'The Temptress' Tajima, the fight was billed as the battle of the Temptresses and didn't disappoint. Stahl emerged the victor but the fight was not without controversy as referee Jenny Valentine, who had fought Tajima previously herself, missed an apparent tap that would have seen a very different outcome. Check out the fight at www.LFCfights.com and decide for yourself if the right Temptress won.

MAKING THE CASE FOR WEIGHT DIVISIONS

The 2nd bout of LFC46 featured a 10" and 50lb size difference. Neither are LFC records but have some fans calling again for the league to implement weight divisions. Ukraine fighter Anna Kovachenko, who had overcome a 58lb weight disadvantage at her LFC45 debut, is getting a reputation as a giant killer after dispatching Jessie 'El Toro' Santos at LFC46. See how she did it at www.LFCfights.com

SARAH WOLFE & RAY LYN VOTED FOTN AT LFC46

The LFC46 semi-main event featured two of LFC's most exciting fighters going toe-to-toe in what fans would vote fight of the night. Sarah 'The Rebel' Wolfe (pink gloves) and Ray Lyn are no strangers to FOTN honors, having each been selected twice previously. Fittingly, the fight required all three 3 minute rounds and a judge's decision to crown a winner but the real winners were the fans. ## LFC CHAMP BELLA INK OVERCOMES CAR ACCIDENT TO DEFEND TITLE

Bella Ink was involved in a serious car accident last October that threatened to end her LFC career. Forced to sit out LFC45, fans weren't sure they'd ever get to see the Nashville boxer in action again. But anyone who knows Ink knows not to count her out and the blonde beauty returned to defend her title months earlier than even the most optimistic medical projection. Ink came out swinging for the fences vs #1 contender Jade Long in a wardrobe malfunction heavy match. See the uncensored fight exclusively at www.LFCfights.com.
